1844.

LEAP YEAR, and 68th of the INDEPENDENCE of the UNITED STATES.

Fitted to FIVE different MERIDIANS; and calculated for the whole UNITED STATES, British PROVINCES, and TEXAS.

Containing all necessary for an Almanack and a variety of other matters.

BY THOMAS SPOFFORD.

'Tis sweet to walk the fields of Spring,
When first the feathered warblers sing;
When peeping forth 'mid youthful green,
The modest violets are seen.
Oh sweet the breath of Summer's morn,
And sweet the sight of golden eorn,
And sweet at evening's silent hour,
The balmy breeze, the fragrant flower.
'Tis sweet when Autumn's glories shine,
When smiling clusters deck the vine,

When bends the heavy tree, and pours
In Autumn's lap its richest stores.
'Tis sweet, aye sweet, when Winter's blast,
On Autumn's fruitful fields has past;
Earth folds her snowy mantle round,
And lies in wintry slumbers bound.
To every season, then, we sing,
Sweet Summer time, and sparkling Spring,
And Autumn rich, and Winter drear,
To grateful hearts, they all are dear.

TO THE PUBLIC.

WE spend our years as a tale that is told. It is past, and as a watch in the night. Your fathers! where are they? And the prophets! do they live forever? Standing upon the ruins of the Old Year, or, as we might say, upon the ruins of AGES, we cannot but be impressed with the frailty and transitory nature of all sublunary things. Of those of our frail race, who began the past year with us, more than thirty millions are now numbered with the MIGHTY DEAD. Swiftly glide our years—they follow each other like the waves of the ocean. Memory calls up the persons we once knew, the scenes in which we once were actors; they appear before the mind like the phantoms of a night vision. Behold the boy rejoicing in the gaiety of his soul; the wheels of time cannot move too rapidly for him—the light of hope dances in his eye—the smiles of expectation play upon his lip—he looks forward to long years of joy to come—his spirit burns within him when he hears of great men and mighty deeds—he wants to be a man—he longs to mount the hill of ambition, to tread the path of honor, to hear the shout of applause. Look at him again—he is now in the meridian of life—care has stamped its wrinkles upon his brow—disappointment has dimmed the lustre of his eye—sorrow has thrown its gloom upon his countenance—he looks back upon the waking dreams of his youth, and sighs for their futurity—each revolving year seems to diminish something from his little stock of happiness, and he discovers that the season of youth, when the pulse of anticipation beats high, is the only season of enjoyment. Who is he of the aged locks? His form is bent and totters—his footsteps move more rapidly towards the tomb—he looks back upon the past—his days appear to have been few, and he confesses that they are evil—the magnificence of the great is to him vanity, the hilarity of youth folly—he considers how soon the gloom of death must overshadow the one, and disappointment the other—the world presents little to attract and nothing to delight him—still, however, he would linger in it—still he would lengthen out his days, though of “beauty’s bloom,” of “fancy’s flash,” of “music’s breath,” he is forced to exclaim, “I have no pleasure in them.” A few years of infirmity, inanity and pain, must consign him to idleness or the grave—yet this was the gay, the generous, the high-souled boy, who beheld his ascending path of life strewn with flowers without a thorn. Such is human life; but such cannot be the ultimate destiny of man.

An impression which the close or the opening of the year is fitted to produce, is the vanity of earthly hopes. Where now is the bloom of Spring, and the magnificence of Summer?—Where are those glowing skies, and that romantic scenery, and all the prophetic visions, that then clustered around us? Alas! they are but the emblems of human frailty. In this short and rapid period, which has swept away all of vegetable nature, other changes and other revolutions have spread their ravages around us. How many—perhaps our friends—perhaps our kindred, have made their cold bed in the grave of the year! We survive? How long? No doubt we dream of long life and prosperity—ours, we think, will be the perpetual sunshine—the beams of heaven will play around our habitation: and when the evening of our days is come, our sun will go down in cloudless serenity. Pleasing, but fatal delusion! A few days will tell the tale of our departure; a few more, and our memories will have perished; yet a few more, and the unwary passenger will tread upon our graves, and know not that we are there.

How mutable and transitory are all terrestrial things! How futile are all our endeavors to evade the obliterating hand of time! There is no confidence to be placed in earthly prospects! Where now is the splendor and opulence of the old world? Where is all the fertility and population of Palestine? Where is the grandeur and magnificence of Damascus, of Idumea, of Jerusalem and Samaria? Where are all the flourishing cities of Syria? What has become of those ages of abundance and of life? How have so many brilliant creators of human industry vanished? Where now are those ramparts of Nineveh, those walls of Babylon, those palaces of Persopolis, and those temples of Balbec? Where are those fleets of Tyre, those dock-yards of Arad, those workshops of Sidon, and that multitude of sailors, of pilots, of merchants, and soldiers? Where those husbandmen, those harvers, those flocks, and all the creation of living beings in which the world rejoiced? Ah! to the tumultuous throng, has succeeded the solitude of death! The silence of the tomb is substituted for the bustle of public places! The opulence of commercial cities is changed into hideous poverty! The temples are fallen, the palaces of kings are overthrown, and become a den of wild beasts! Thus perish the works of men; thus do empires and nations disappear! In those places, now so desolate, once flourished opulent cities; there, where now a mournful silence reigns, the noise of arts, and the shouts of joy and festivity incessantly resounded! There a numerous people assembled for the sacred duties of religion, or the anxious cares of their subsistence! there industry, parent of enjoyment, collected the riches of all climates, and the purple of Tyre was exchanged for the thread of Scirica, the soft tissues of Cashmere for the sumptuous tapestry of Lydia, the amber of the Baltic for the pearls and perfumes of Arabia. Now, a mournful skeleton is all that subsists of those once powerful places! nought new remains of their vast domination but a doubtful and empty remembrance! Alas! how quickly are the most splendid monuments of human art and human greatness corroded by time, and reduced to desolation! All that now remains of that ancient magnificence and grandeur is a mass of mighty ruins! the winds have swept over their remains—the ivy has wreathed round the fragments of decay—and the solitary raven moans undisturbed among their ruins, announcing to the world that no pomp of earthly greatness can survive the desolation of time.

At the recent expiration of one year, and the commencement of another, almost every one among the living has looked back with solemnity if not with grief and remorse; and has asked himself what are his prospects for the year to come. He knows not what a day, much less what a year may bring forth: but he cannot be indifferent, as Providence is unfolding the leaves of the book, where are written all the things which most nearly concern him in all time to come. An anxious and unsubmitive inquiry about future events is sinful and foolish. Sufficient for the day is its own evil. But within certain limits, we are required to consider things not seen as yet. Let us then seriously inquire what events may be expected to transpire in the year 1844.

We may settle it in our minds as a fact beyond all dispute, that some of us will be called into eternity. Of the population of the globe, it is computed that not less than thirty millions die annually. Our little manual is probably perused every year by more than three hundred thousand persons; from this number, according to the ordinary course of nature, several thousand are annually called to their long home. Many of the readers, therefore, of these columns, perhaps the writer, must this year be numbered with the mighty dead. Many of us must finish our journey here, and go to that unknown country from whose bourne no traveller returns. The eyes that will survey these pages, will be sunk, and closed in death; and the hands that will turn over these leaves, will be still, cold, and mouldering in the silent grave. No man or angel can tell us who the individuals are, that shall this year be called from this vain and transitory world. Let us all then reflect what would be our feelings, should we be assured by the Lord, "this year thou shalt die."

If we are ourselves spared, we may this year be called to take up the lamentation, Lover and friend thou hast put far from me, and my acquaintance into darkness. Those who are now the delight of our eyes, and the joy of our hearts may be taken away with a sudden stroke; or they may cause us weeks and months of anxiety and distress, while we see them languish and die. Let us then be as though we had no connexions to enjoy or lose, and stand ready to resign which soever God shall call. Those whose mountain of worldly prosperity now stands firmly, may this year see it totter to its base and crumble into dust. The fire may devour, the deep may bury in its bosom, or ruthless knavery may snatch away our wealth and our means of subsistence. Who is ready to be stript of his possessions, and descend into the vale of poverty and want? Not he who is saying, I have goods laid up for many years; I will eat, drink, and be merry. He is not prepared for a reverse, whose only portion lies in that which vanisheth away. Others may live and see all their friends around them when the year shall close, and even add to their earthly treasure. And may God grant that, to such as receive them, these may all prove real blessings. No man, however, knoweth either good or evil by all that is before him. Such blessings have endangered and even destroyed the souls of thousands, through their perversion of them, almost every year since time began. The prosperity of the wicked and impenitent may destroy them this year also. If the Lord send us prosperity in the things of this life, O, may he give us grace to use the world as not abusing it.

We may hope and believe, that sinners will this year be converted to God. Christ is adding converts to his kingdom every year, and every month. For some years past our own land has been peculiarly favored with the effusions of his Spirit. Our own state, though left more barren than other portions, has received some showers of grace. We must hope that a year which will number many thousands among us with the dead, will not pass over without an ingathering of souls in our own state. We cannot doubt there will be some. We may plead for many. If Zion will arise, if importunate and believing prayer shall ascend, we may expect to see our fellow sinners pressing into the kingdom of heaven in every direction. May every reader desire and pray for this day of the Lord. May he see those who are dearest to himself this year added to the people of God. If he be himself a stranger to renewing grace, may he have no rest till he does know it, and come over on the Lord's side.

It is probable however, that iniquity will still prevail; and that sin and Satan will yet longer triumph in various places. We are assured that the wicked will do wickedly. Satan is not yet bound. His delusions are still abroad in the earth. The hearts of a vast majority of the sons of men are fully set in them to do evil. If men will love darkness, they will be involved in deeper darkness. If sinners will not turn to God, they will increase unto more ungodliness. If they will continue in the way of transgression, they may in one short year sink to a moral degradation at the thoughts of which they now shudder. The enemies of Christ may even become more bold and confident. But let them not hope to prevail: let not the righteous despond. The triumphing of the wicked is short. Let us pray for their conversion; let us plead that God would glorify himself in their salvation and not in their overthrow.

This year will not be lost to Immanuel's kingdom. Whether we shall serve him or fight against him; whether our Zion shall look forth as the morning, or lie in desolation; whether America at large shall afford thousands of converts to the doctrine of the cross, or become still more like the old world and the cities of the plain, Zion will be remembered in heaven. On the great scale, the work of the Redeemer shall prosper. The earth does not complete an annual or even diurnal revolution without bringing nearer that desire of all the faithful, the universal dominion of Immanuel. Many weapons may be formed against his cause, but not one of them shall prosper. Seemingly adverse events may dishearten the friends of God, but they will ultimately promote the furtherance of the gospel. Of all things on earth this is most certain, that the earth shall be filled with the glory of the Lord, and that all events shall concur to effect it; that the Lord shall reign over the multitude of the redeemed, and that the nations which will not submit to him shall perish.

If we examine the nature and progress of man's institutions, we shall find them all partaking of that mutability which characterizes his own strange, and fitful, and feverish existence: perishable himself, how can he confer eternity upon his works? He erects his statue of brass, the colossus of ages—Triumphant Time! Thou hurlest it to the dust! True he can ascend the ever-during arch of Fame, and inscribethere the letters of his immortality—he can kindle the fire of his renown which blazes for ages, a beacon to the universe! but he cannot recall the last faint sigh of existence, nor protect his trophies against the scythe of destruction. Go, and learn this truth from the melancholy picture of history! Go, and moralize amid the ruins of Thebes, and ask where are her hundred gates, her thousand chariots, and her millions of warriors? Go, and learn wisdom from solitary Tyre, and ask where are her golden palaces and numberless navies? Go, and ask of Egypt, where are her twenty thousand cities, her temple of the Sun, her oracle of Ammon, and her sacred fountain? there the sun now shines on a bleak waste, the voice of the oracle hath been silent for ages, and the wild weed hath long waved in the bed of its fountain! Let Macedon produce the trophies of her conquering son; let Persia show the diadem of Cyrus and the spear of Cambyses! Ah! they are alike enveloped by the oblivious pall, and the mournful voice of history tells only that they have been.

"Yet a few years, or days perhaps,

Or moments pass in silent lapse,
And TIME to me shall be no more;

No more the Sun these eyes shall view,
Earth o'er these limbs her dust shall strew;
And life's delusive dream be o'er!"

THOMAS SPOFFORD.

New York, June, 1843.

A Juggler Juggled.—A juggler in Boston, after performing several feats of legerdemain, asked any of the company to favor him with a nine-penny piece, and he would convert it into a dollar. A spectator out with his leather pouch, and handed the exhibitor a nine-pence, which the latter readily, apparently changed into a silver dollar—handing it to the spectator to examine. The countryman on receiving the dollar, took off his hat, and made a low bow to the exhibitor, exclaiming, "Well, I'll be darned if you han't done it," and putting the dollar into the pouch from which he had taken the nine-pence, he added, "but you ain't going to turn it back into nine-pence, no how."

Queer Bedfellow.—At a ladies' temperance meeting in Newburyport, one of the ladies remarked that the temperance cause had been a great blessing to her—"for" said she, "I slept with a barrel of rum for nine years—but now" she continued, her eyes brightening, "since my husband has signed the pledge, I have a MAN to sleep with—thank God!" Then all the spinsters laid their hands on their hearts and said—Amen.

OPTIONAL SLEEP.

"Pray, Jack, are you asleep?" says Ned;
"What makes you ask?" Jack slowly said;
"Because of you or Sam,
I want to borrow half a crown,
For something that I owe in town;"
"Why then," says Jack, "I am."

A knavish Attorney asked a very worthy gentleman, what was honesty? "What is that to you, meddle with things that concern you," said he.

 A gentleman being short of funds, wrote a laconic epistle to a friend, requesting the loan of some money, adding, that as his friend was at once the best and most lucky man in the world, the probability was that he would get his money again. His friend immediately complied with his request.

Behind hand.—An idle fellow, complaining of his hard lot, said he was the last child his mother ever had, he was born on the last day of the year, the last day of the month, the last day of the week, and he had always been behind-hand. He believed it would have been fifty dollars in his pocket if he had not been born at all.

There is a man in Wetumpka, Ala., so polite that he never passes a peticoat hanging on a clothes line that he don't bow to it.

"I think I have seen you somewhere," said one gentleman to another. "No doubt, I have been there often," was the reply.

Dr. Isaac Lettsom's manner of signing his prescriptions, "I Lettsom," gave rise to the following,

When patients sad to me apply,
I physics, bleeds, and sweats 'em;
Ifaster that they choose to die,
What's that to me?—I. Letts'em.

How is this world deceived by noise and show;
Alas! how different to pretend and know:
While like a highway brook, pretence runs loud,
Bustling, but shallow, dirty, weak and proud;
But like some nobler stream, true knowledge
glides
Silently strong, and its deep bottom hides.

ECLIPSES IN THE YEAR 1844.

There will be five eclipses this year, three of the Sun and two of the Moon. Those of the Moon will both be great and total eclipses, and partially visible in most parts of the U. S. Those of the Sun will all be very small and not central to any part of the earth; they will all be entirely invisible in the U. S. except the last. The visible eclipses this year will all happen at about the time of the going down of the Sun, in the northeastern part of the U. S. In those of the Moon, the Moon will rise about four minutes before the Sun set.

I. The first will be of the Moon at the time of the full in May, as follows:

Time at	Bost.	N. Y.	Wash.	Charl.	N. Or.
Beginning of the Eclipse.	h. m.	h. m.	h. m.	h. m.	h. m.
	4 27	4 15	4 6	3 52	3 12
Total begins	5 30	5 18	5 9	4 54	4 14
Middle,	6 8	5 57	5 47	5 33	4 53
Total ends,	6 47	6 35	6 26	6 12	5 31
Eclipse ends,	7 50	7 38	7 28	7 14	6 34

Digits eclipsed 15' 56" on the Moon's northern limb, in the southern sect. of the Earth's shadow.

II. The second will be of the Sun at the time of New Moon in June; visible only in the vicinity of the South Pole.

III. The third will also be of the Sun at the time of New Moon in November, visible only in the vicinity of the North Pole.

IV. The fourth will be of the Moon at the time of the full in Nov., as follows.

Time at	Bost.	N. Y.	Wash.	Charl.	N. Or.
Beginning of the Eclipse.	h. m.	h. m.	h. m.	h. m.	h. m.
	5 27	5 6	4 57	4 43	4 2
Total begins,	6 30	6 15	6 5	5 51	5 11
Middle,	7 13	7 1	6 52	6 37	5 37
Total ends,	8 0	7 48	7 33	7 24	6 44
Eclipse ends,	9 8	8 56	8 47	8 32	7 52

Digits eclipsed 17' 13" on Moon's south limb, in the north section of the Earth's shadow.

V. The fifth and last will be a very small eclipse of the Sun at the time of New Moon in Dec., and without close observation or the assistance of glasses, it will probably pass unnoticed; altho it will be wholly visible in the Southern and Western states; and in the Northern and Eastern states it will be partially visible, the Sun going down with about two digits obscured, at nearly the middle of the eclipse. Its phases will be as follows.

Time at	Boston.	Washing.	N Orleans
Eclipse begins,	3h. 53m	3h. 25m.	2h. 28 m.
Greatest obscu.	4h. 27m	4h. 3m.	3h. 3m.
End of eclipse	4h. 57m	4h. 37m	3h. 31m.
Digits eclipsed.	2d. 9m	2d. 54m.	1d. 18m

The time of High Water here found, is nearly accurate on the days of New and Full Moon. In the first and third quarters it is too late, at most, 1 hour and 9 minutes. In the second and fourth quarters, it is too early at most, 24 minutes.

EXPLANATION All the calculations are in Apparent time, or time shown by the sun. The Sun's and Moon's Declination, Longitude and Right Ascension, and the sun slow or fast of the clock, and also the Planets Right Ascension and Declination, are all calculated for noon at London; which is 7h. 16m. in the morning at Boston; 7h. 4m. at New-York, 6h. 51m. at Washington, 6h. 40 minutes at Charleston, and 5h. 33m. in the morning at New-Orleans. The first short column below, is the 1st, 7th, 13th, 19th and 25th days of the month; 2nd column Pointers north, or more accurately Dubhe, the Pointer nearest the Pole north; 4th column, the 7 stars, or the mariner's star Arcturus south. The other columns, it is presumed, are sufficiently plain from their titles.—Loc. means longitude; r a right ascension; so. or sou. south, and Dec. Declination. The Equinoxes, Solstices, and P's Phases, are for Boston.

HE is wise in heart, and mighty in strength; which removeth the mountains and they know not; which overturneth them in his anger. Which shaketh the earth out of her place, and the pillars thereof tremble. Which commandeth the sun and it riseth not; and sealeth up the stars. Which alone spreadeth out the heavens, and treadeth upon the waves of the sea. Which maketh Arcturus, Orion, and the Pleiades, and the chambers of the south. Which doeth great things past finding out: yea, and wonders without number.—Job 4, 5, 6, &c. Not to acknowledge the greatness and wisdom of the Almighty Creator in the least of his works, as well as in great and extraordinary phenomena, betrays alike our ignorance and our weakness. The formation of the minutest insect, or a blade of grass, displays as much the power of the Supreme Being, as did the creation of man from the dust of the earth, or of all those vast orbs that roll their immense masses through the expanse of heaven.

Jan 8, 1815. JACKSON'S Victory. N. O. The British were repulsed with a loss of near 2000 stand of arms, 14 pieces of artillery, and more than 3000 men in killed, wounded and prisoners. Among the killed were Sir Edward Packenham commander, Gen. Gibbs, and several other distinguished officers, the flower of the British army. Jackson's loss was only 6 killed and 7 wounded. Thus was the western country and N. Orleans, with its beauty and booty, preserved. It must also be told to the everlasting disgrace of the otherwise gallant and generous Gen. Packenham, that to induce his soldiers to acts of daring valor, he promised their cupidity as a reward, the wealth of the city, while, with brutal lewdness, they were to revel in lawless indulgence over female innocence. Beauty and booty was the watchword of the day: this was ascertained by the prisoners, and also by the books of several of their Orderly Sergeants, which contained record proof of the fact.

25th, 1787. Shey's Insurrection and defeat in Massachusetts.

Years unheeded steal away,
And the schemes of earthly bliss,
Erring mortals fondly lay,
Fail in such a world as this.

Farmers' Calendar.—Independent Yeomen, pillars of the nation, fathers and sustainers of our independence, and the only class of independent freemen! In obedience to divine command you till the earth, nature's vast storehouse; into your hands she pours her wealth; from your stores are fed the inhabitants of the palace and the cot. All ranks of people are dependent on you! Now for our professional business. How are matters and things at the barn? Are your graneries properly secured from the depredations of the rats and mice?

Winter, in his dread array, fiercely howls through all the plain, Dimming Sol's effulgent ray, while he holds his icy reign.

Winter is the time of nature's rest. In the preceding months she has been exhausted with incessant labor for the good of man. The Spring has been rich in flowers, the Summer abundant in fruits prepared for the Autumn's maturing hand. Every month, every day, we receive some fresh gift from nature. Now for a while she has been reposing, in order to acquire fresh vigor to assume her wonted resplendency.

The wintry storm is raging high—

The north wind blows, the forests sigh;

The ways are filled with drifted snow,

And ice-bound streams cease to flow.

The snowy flakes, the snowy flakes
Have fallen thick around,
And midnight glee the silence breaks,
As folly's shouts resound.

For gleesome songs and tingling bells,
Discordant ring their peals:
Each noisy strain with echo dwells,
And heartless joy reveals.

Each gallant beau, each gallant beau,
With welcome hails the hour

That strews the earth with falling snow,
And yields to Winter's power.

For fleetest coursers then are found,
His lady love to bear;
The prancing steeds fly with a bound,
And seem to tread on air.

The sleighing belles, the sleighing belles,
Their souls are filled with glee,
With joy and life and hope that swells
Each heart with ecstasy.

Obeying pleasure's syren smile,
They bid adieu each sorrow;
With hearts as free from grief as guile,
Anticipate the morrow.

Thou hast prepared the light of the Sun. Thou hast set all the borders of the Earth: thou hast made Summer and Winter.—Ps. lxxiv. 16 and 17. If we examine the works of God with attention, we shall find, even in this season, many subjects which may lead us to rejoice in the goodness of the Lord, and to exalt the miracles of his wisdom. During the budding spring, the bountiful summer, and the luxuriant autumn, when Nature, from her most simple, assumes her gayest and most splendid robes, hardened and callous indeed must be that heart which does not throb with pleasure, and pulsate with gratitude for such choice gifts. But when the north wind blows, when a biting frost stiffens the face of the earth, when the fields, stripped of their fruits, and divested of all their charms, present one wild and de-olating view, then it is that men of the greatest sensibility will sometimes forget to be grateful. But it is true that the earth at this season is so utterly destitute of the blessings of Heaven, that it possesses nothing that can excite the emotions of gratitude and of piety in the heart of man? Certainly not. Let us only bestow more attention upon the works of nature, and we shall never find occasion to arraign the wisdom of God.

Feb 23, 1813 The U. S. sloop of war Hornet, of 18 guns, commanded by the intrepid and patriotic Capt. Lawrence, fell in with the British brig Peacock, Capt. Peake, of equal force, off Guiana South America. A fierce and sanguinary combat ensued; in about 15 minutes the Peacock struck her colors, and displayed at the same time a signal of distress. The crew of the Hornet, with a generosity becoming them divided their clothing with the prisoners, who were left destitute by the sinking of their ship. Immediately on the surrender of the Peacock, the victors hastened to the relief of the vanquished, and the same strength which had been exerted to conquer, was now exerted to save. Their efforts were but partially successful; she sank before all her crew could be removed, carrying down nine British and three brave American tars, who thus nobly perished in their generous endeavors to rescue their enemies. In the battle the Hornet had but 1 killed and 3 wounded. The loss of the Peacock was not ascertained.

Hope, that dwells in every breast.

Bids us onward urge our way;

What though frowns on winter rest?

Winter will not always stay.

Farmers' Calendar.—Ye tillers of the sod! ye that earn your bread by the sweat of the brow! ancient and honorable people; lords of the soil and sovereigns of this lower creation, may the earth yield you her increase, and peace and plenty pervade your habitations.

At this leisure season, the farmer indulges himself in ease and plenty, this is right; but I would remind him that economy and frugality are never more essential. Visit your barns early in the morning; feed your cattle little at a time but often.

*Bleak and dreary is the scene, though returning spring draws nigh;
Fields will soon resume their green, and refresh the weary eye.*

Various are the signs of returning spring that now appear; some of the earlier birds of passage have returned; the snow and ice are gone; the fields in many places have assumed a vernal greenness; the buds swell on the branches, and amidst the brown remains of last year's vegetation, may be seen the luxuriant growth of this.

The ills that darken human life,
Like winter when its storms are rife,
Will just as sure some blessings bring,
As winter will be changed to spring.

Returning Spring, how sweet thy beauties are,
Thy bloomy flowers, how delicate and fair;
The forest foliage and grass how green,
Atearly dawn when with young eyes they're seen

Returning Spring, I love thy sunny days,
The heart o'erflowing, to thee homage pays.
From orange isles, from summer worlds afar,
We hail thy smiles, we greet thy rising star.

Returning Spring, at thy approach is seen
The playful lambs, the bubble on the stream.
The bands of winter, sundered all in twain,
And lo! the world awakes to joy again.

Returning Spring, drest as the lovely bride,
Joy in her train, and music by her side;
The busy throng put on the cheerful smile,
And the sweet song the busy hours beguile.

Returning Spring, thy virgin breast is fair,
Thy flowing locks, thy varied beauties rare,
And ever young, with visage ever new,
Untouched by time, and sprinkled e'er with dew.

Child of the sun-bright morning of the year,
With thy robes on, how lovely they appear.
The songsters of the grove, on their light wing,
With thee in love, all hail returning spring.

If I take the wings of the morning, and dwell in the uttermost parts of the sea, even there shall thy hand lead me, and thy right hand shall hold me.—Ps cxxxix. 9, 10. Light has been proved, by many experiments, to travel at the astonishing rate of 194,188 miles in one second of time. But could I even fly upon the wings or rays of the morning light, which diffuses itself with such velocity over the globe from east to west, instead of being beyond the reach of, or by this sudden transition, being able to escape thy notice, thy hand, or power, could still, at pleasure, prevent or arrest my progress, and I should still be encircled with the immensity of thy essence. The sentiment in this noble passage is remarkably striking, and the description truly sublime.

Mar. 5, 1770. Boston Massacre, or affray between the king's troops and the citizens, in which three of the latter were killed and several severely wounded. The circumstances and probable consequences of this tragical affair, sunk deep into the minds of the people, and were turned to the advantage of their cause. Its anniversary, for many years, was observed with great solemnity; and the most eloquent orators were successively employed to deliver an annual oration to preserve the remembrance of it fresh in their minds. On these occasions, the blessings of liberty, the horrors of slavery, the dangers of a standing army, the rights of the colonies, &c., were represented to the public view under their most pleasing and alarming forms. These annual orations administered fuel to the fire of liberty, and kept it burning with an incessant flame.

17th, 1776. Boston evacuated by the British troops, having been in their possession more than sixteen months.

Yes, the lapse of time will bring
Brighter, better days than these;
Good from seeming ill may spring
Till may give us sweetest ease.

Farmers' Calendar.—Agriculture is the employment assigned to us by the Almighty Creator when he decreed that men should live by the sweat of his brow. And whilst it ensures plenty and happiness to the individual, it powerfully contributes to our national prosperity, and is, at the same time, the standard by which we may determine the degree of civilization and refinement to which our country has attained.

Carefully attend to your forward cows and ewes. Prune fruit and other trees.

A certain man went down from Jerusalem to Jericho, and fell among thieves, which stripped him of his raiment, and wounded him, and departed, leaving him half dead.— Luke x. 30. The whole of the road from Jerusalem to Jericho is considered to be the most dangerous in Palestine; the very aspect of the scenery, indeed, is sufficient on the one hand to tempt robbery and murder, and on the other to inspire a dread of it in those who have to pass this way. The bold projecting mass of rocks, the dark shadows in which every thing lies buried below, the towering height of the cliffs above, and the forbidding desolation which every where reigns around, presents a picture which is quite in harmony throughout all its parts. With what propriety did our Savior choose this spot as the scene of this delightful tale of compassion. One must be amid these wild and gloomy solitudes, attended, as is usual, by a number of armed men, and witness the watchfulness, the shoutings, and the awful echoes, before the full force and beauty of the admirable story of the good Samaritan can be perceived.

April 30, 1789. Washington inaugurated first president of the U. S. The ceremony was performed in the open gallery of Federal Hall in N. York. "This august scene," says a spectator, "seemed, from the number of witnesses, and other circumstances, to be a solemn appeal to heaven and earth at once. Upon the subject of this great and good man, I may perhaps be an enthusiast; but I confess I was under an awful and religious persuasion, that the great Ruler of the Universe was looking down at that moment with peculiar complacency upon the scene. Under this impression, when the Chancellor pronounced, in a very feeling manner, 'LONG LIVE GEORGE WASHINGTON!' I could do no more than wave my hat with the rest, without the power of joining in the repeated acclamations which rent the air."

Clouds may dim the brightest sky,
Yet the sky is no less fair;
Tears may drown the sparkling eye,
And a gleam of joy be there.

Farmers' Calendar.—No wonder that agriculture has been the business and the amusement of the world in every age: it forces itself upon us on account of its necessity, and recommends itself on account of its advantages. Other arts and employments may serve for the embellishment of human life, this is necessary for its support. Without it, civilization ceases, and population fails.

Plough your tillage lands well.

May 19, 1780. An alarming darkness in N. England. It began about 10 A. M. At 1 P. M. it was so great that people could not see to read large print out of doors, or pursue their ordinary affairs without artificial light. The birds sang their evening songs and disappeared—the fowls retired to roost, and the cocks crew. Many persons thought the day of judgment had arrived. The darkness through the night following, though it was at the time of full moon, was far greater than had ever been witnessed by the oldest person living. It was a "darkness that could be felt." Many who were abroad when night came on, though not half a mile from home, were not able to find their way, and were obliged to remain out till morning.

23, 1803. Procession in N. York for the re-interment of the bones of nearly 1000 soldiers of the revolution, which had been partially buried on the shores of the Wallabout Cove, from the British Prison ships.

Genial skies and seasons fair,
Are not all that mortals need ;
Toil, anxiety and care,
To unnumbered blessings lead.

Farmers' Calendar.—If the income of the farmer be not as abundant as that of the professional man, or the merchant, it is also not so precarious. If greater bodily exertion and fatigue attaches to his employment, he has far less anxiety and perplexity of mind. If he has not an equal access to the luxuries and superfluities of life, he is more certain of necessities and comforts.

The lark's carol proclaims the dawn; up and be stirring; no time is to be lost this month.

*Feathered choirs their matin song raise triumphant through the grove ;
Lovely flowers spring up along near the path-way where we rove.*

June is in reality in our climate, what the poets represent May to be, the most lovely month in the year. Summer is commenced, and warm weather thoroughly established, without oppressive heat. The trees and fields look proudly in the lustiness of their young green ; and the sun shoots out his sultry strength, making the winged tribes wanton and noisy with their joy.

Now flowers appear of every hue,
And grass suffused with fragrant dew,
Delight the senses as we rove
In garden, field, or verdant grove.

Now the fields are all gay,
And perfumed by the hay,
And the summer its beauties discloses,
In fruits and in flowers,
In gardens and bowers,
In daisies, in pinks, and in roses.

The mower now blythe,
Cuts the grass with his scythe,
And the haymakers hope for employment ;
And when their work's done,
They depart with the sun,
Men and maids to their evening enjoyment.

Now the merry bells ring,
And the grasshoppers sing,
And sweet chirpings are heard in the mead ;
Now we see lovely blooms,
Now we smell sweet perfumes,
Which no civet can ever exceed.

The plummy, winged train,
Which in æther sustain
Their bodies, and flit through the sky,
The joy which they feel,
By ways various reveal,
When the prospect of summer is nigh.

Now verdure clothes the lawn, and whist'ring zephyrs play,
 The pleasant and sublime adorn the lovely summer's day

9, 1816. Snow and frost in the Northern States.

Farmers' Calendar.—The intelligent husbandman no longer considers himself as plodding in an humble sphere ; as devoted to an occupation, useful indeed, as supplying the physical wants of man, but disconnected with the exercise of his intellectual powers. His false shame and indifference to labor, fly before the conviction that he ranks in society with all that is useful, honorable, and dignified.

*Grateful is the summer shower, to the dry and thirsty ground;
Smiling looks the verdant bower, and the landscape all around.*

In the uncultivated haunts of the country, in the recesses of the groves and woods it is, that summer now in full perfection holds her court. And here, upon nature's verdant carpet of moss and fern, sheltered by the venerable oak or lofty elm, are the most delicious retreats during the fiery noons of parching July.

Now the hills which arise
With their tops to the skies,
At a distance with grandeur appear;
And the vallies between
Serve to vary the scene,
And gay spots set off those that are drear.

When thro' hot fields we range,
Without any cool change,
And puff, and grow languid, and swelter,
What joy then to meet
An umbrageous retreat,

And from scorching noon find a thick shelter!

The cattle that graze
By the river which strays
Thro' meadows with cowslips embellish'd;
The lapse of a rill,
And the clack of a mill,
Are by all friends to rural life relished.

Here the frolicksome fawns
Nimble bound o'er the lawns,
And young kids gambol playful and airy;
There the cows their milk yield
To the nymphs of the field,

And give gallons to swift finger'd Mary.

A servant earnestly desireth the shadow.—Job vii. 2. We are now in that season in which the fervent rays of the sun induce us to seek repose in the refreshing shade of the groves. These cool sequestered retreats are favorable for serious reflection; and our thoughts will there sometimes be directed to the awful solemnity of the grave, where the just will be received as into a safe harbor from the tossings and dangers of a life of care and trouble. The reaper prepares to cut down his grain: the sickle levels the tall ears on the right and on the left, and leaves behind it the fields empty and deserted. This is a just emblem of life: all flesh is grass, and all the glory, all the honors and duration of life, as the flowers of the field: like them man flourishes for a time; and, when the Lord of the harvest ordereth, falls under the scythe. Let us imitate the activity and industry of the bees; and as they are busied in collecting and preparing their honey from every flower that scents the air, may we also be very diligent in anassing those treasures of wisdom and virtue which will be our delight when age presses heavily upon us, and our great consolation in the final separation of the soul from the body!

July 4. Ever to be celebrated as the birth-day of our liberty—the Declaration of Independence in 1776—when our forefathers cast off the British yoke, and these U. S., then British colonies, became a sovereign people among the nations of the earth. An ever-memorable day also on account of the providential and most remarkable coincidence in 1826, in the death of two of the patriot fathers and signers of the declaration of independence. The one the immortal JEFFERSON, the writer of that document, breathed his last a few minutes past noon, the time it was read and signed; the other, the illustrious ADAMS, at 4, P. M., the time it was promulgated; having lived just 50 years after this event. Five years after, President Monroe died, July 4th, 1831.

Of, when summer's sun is bright,
Beaming in the azure sky,
Clouds, that intercept his light,
Pour their treasures from on high.

Farmers' Calendar.—Among men of liberal notions and cultivated understandings, agriculture has always been respected and respectable; but it is incumbent on its friends to make all think so, and yield to it that deference and consideration to which its importance and utility so justly entitle it.

Look to your grain.

*Deity in all appears—from the orbs that roll above,
To the plants his goodness rears, we can read that God is love.*

In the latter part of the last and the beginning of this month, is generally experienced the greatest degree of heat in the year. Its effect is very sensible upon the animate and vegetable creation. The insect tribes are now very active, and as they die on the approach of winter, they have no time to lose.

The fields are white with ripening grain,
When old and Sirius jointly reign;
Nor will the warm and sultry air
The robust farmer's health impair.

Summer, I love thy soft and dewy morn,
Thy waving meadows and thy fields of corn;
The ripening harvest and the yellow grain
That clothes the mountain's brow, and decks
the plain.

Summer, I love thee, just as thou art seen
In forest dress and woven carpet green,
When the ripe apples hanging on the trees,
Come bounding down with every passing breeze.

Summer, I love the music of thy voice,
The rich rewards that bid the heart rejoice,
When granaries are filled from the deep soil,
And fields pay tribute to the hand of toil.

Summer, I love thee, when in moonlight drest
But more the pearls that sparkle on thy breast.
The healthful breeze from Iceland's moss-bound shore,

The rainbow robed with light and beauty o'er.
Summer, I love to climb thy hawthorn hill,
Where sings at dusky eve the whippoorwill;
And the wild bloom, whose dewy tresses drip,
Sweet as the ruby on a maiden lip.

Summer, I love thee for thy fruitful vine,
Where grow strawberries, and they are mine;
Thy fields of clover, where the busy bee
Gathers his honey for himself and me.

And the parched ground shall become a pool, and the thirsty land springs of water: in the habitation of dragons, where each lay, shall be grass, with reeds and rushes.—Isaiah xxxv. 7. Bishop Lowth reads, "And the glowing sand shall", &c.; the sand which sometimes deceives the thirsty traveller, by seeming at a distance like water. All this allusion would be well understood by the orientals. In those countries, in spring and summer, if the east wind continue to blow a few days, the fields are in general so parched, that scarcely a blade of any thing green remains; many rivers and streams are dried up, the others are rendered briny, and all nature seems at the point of dissolution. After a plentiful shower, however, the fields revive beyond all expectation; the rivers resume their course, and the springs pour forth more delicious water; the whole face of nature is changed, which introduces much higher ideas of refreshment and pleasure, than the like causes can suggest to us.

Aug. 16, 1824. LA FAYETTE landed at New York, having been invited and offered a national ship by Congress, to convey him to the U. S., but he came in the ship Cadmus, a Havre packet. He was received with a rapture bordering on enthusiasm, by many thousands of adoring citizens, at Castle Garden, amidst the acclamations of a countless multitude, the ringing of bells, and the firing of cannon. He made a tour through the U. S., being everywhere received with the utmost demonstrations of joy and gratitude, and embarked, Sept. 11th, 1825, on board the Brandywine, a frigate built by government to convey him to his native country: having received a grant from Congress of a township of land, and 200,000 dollars.

16, 1812. Gen. Hull surrendered his army, the city of Detroit, and Michigan Territory to the British.

30, 1813. Indian massacre at Mims' fort, Alabama.

Short-lived summer fades away,
Lovely season! ah, how bright,
Yet thy transitory stay
Has not failed to bring delight.

Farmers' Calendar.—In every civilized country the industrious farmer has been respected; but in none have they enjoyed so many advantages as in our own. Here the man who cultivates the soil, and adheres attentively to his employment, acquires a fortune, and the confidence of his fellow citizens; and if he possesses that strong and vigorous mind for which our countrymen are remarkable, honors await him in our legislative and national councils.

*Orchards and the fruitful fields, teeming with their rich supplies,
Their accustomed portion yield, truly precious in our eyes.*

Autumn, lovely Autumn is with us, in all its golden tinted glory. Mellow skies are above us, the soft low breathings of autumnal winds are around us, and with sad and melancholy, yet pleasing recollections of the past, we listen to the broken sighs of departing Summer, as they linger in sadness on the mountain-brow, and whisper from the forest dell.

Behold the clusters of the vine,
That round the forest trees entwine,
And fruits in rich profusion rise,
To feast the taste and please the eyes.

Autumn winds are sighing;
Summer glories dying;
Harvest time is high;
Cooler breezes quivering,
Thro' the pine groves shivering,
Sweep the troubled sky.

See the fields, how yellow!
Clusters bright and mellow,
Gleam on every hill!
Nectar fills the fountains,
Crowns the sunny mountains,
Runs in every rill.

Now the lads are springing;
Maidens blithe are singing;
Swells the harvest strain;
Every field rejoices;
Thousand thankful voices
Mingle on the plain.

Then when day declineth,
When the mild moon shineth,
Tabors sweetly sound;
Music softly sounding,
Fairy feet are bounding,
O'er the moonlit ground.

As for man, his days are as grass: as a flower of the field, so he flourisheth. For the wind passeth over it, and it is gone; and the place thereof shall know it no more.—Psa. ciii. 15, 16. A few weeks ago, when we walked in our gardens, we were surrounded with the most beautiful and pleasing objects, and everything raised emotions of joy in our hearts. But now every day diminishes the number of pleasing objects, or renders their appearance more uniform. The greatest part of the flowers which then beautified our gardens have disappeared, and we begin to have only faint traces of the once charming scenes which so ravished our senses. These revolutions in nature may be very instructive to us. There is a period in our lives in which all the charms of spring make gay and happy our moments, that swiftly glide away, whilst we are beloved and caressed by parents, fondly solicitous for our welfare, and anxiously expecting from our future conduct the rich fruit of all their tender cares. But how often is this hope deceived! Many a sweet flower falls before the blossoms expand. Sickness withers our charms, and nips our opening beauties; and an early death changes hope into the gloom of despondency. We see the spring flowers which bloom till summer, then perish in a few hours. A very striking emblem of death! And scarcely a day passes in which some human being is not unexpectedly and without warning, met by the unsparing messenger. The days of man are as the grass; he flourisheth as a flower of the field: the wind bloweth upon him and he is gone, and the place that knew him knows him no more.

Sept. 14, 1812. The city of Moscow, ancient capital of the Russian empire, burnt by the Russians, to accommodate the invading army of Bonaparte. So dreadfully striking and sublime a spectacle was perhaps never before witnessed by man. Its terrible magnificence can neither be conceived or described! A city more than ten miles in extent, and near forty in circuit, enveloped in one mass of fire, and all consuming with one general conflagration, is a scene almost beyond human comprehension. This stupendous sacrifice, however, saved Russia, and perhaps all Europe, from Bonaparte's grasp.

Autumn, gentle dame! appears
"raught with blessings ever now;
Dispersing all our fears—
Tender, lovely, kind and true.

Farmers' Calendar.—Happiness seems to have fixed her seat in rural scenes. The spacious hall, the lighted assembly, the splendid equipage, and the pomp of courts do not soothe and entertain the mind of man like the varied aspects of nature.

*Ye whom Heaven has largely blest with a bounteous store of good,
See that sorrow's sons, distressed, famish not for want of food.*

"The melancholy days are come, the saddest of the year," and the spirit-stirring song of the velvet-footed nymph is turned into a dirge-like requiem for the dead and dying. Decay and death have marked the vegetable world—the flower hath shed its fragrance on the air and fallen from the parent stem. The grass withereth.

The trees a gaudy aspect wear,
The blossoms of the fading year:
Precarious dress! how soon it flies
When autumn's angry tempests rise.

Autumn steals on with slow and silent pace,
And like a bashful maid unveils her face;
In sandals shod, she comes from desert wild,
And brings the olive branch of peace so mild.

Autumn, a friend returned with visage fair,
And ringlets braided all with yellow hair;
Upon her brow, adorned with coronet,
The signet and the seal of time is set.

Autumn, thy walks are but a fading bloom,
In silent grandeur hast'ning to the tomb;
With distant music dying on the ear,
The falling leaf proclaims the closing year.

Autumn, with ruin's train in sadness drest,
Committed to unclot the wilderness;
And the last song the parting anthem keeps
In unison, while silent nature weeps.

Autumn, that came with smiles & fr'ndly hand,
Assumed a frowning, bold and stern command;
Armed with the scythe, the sickle and the spear,
And then retired, but still I love thee dear.

A't'ma, farew'! you've spoil'd my bed of flow'rs
My carpet green, my happy moonlight hours,
And driven with your winds far, far away,
My bluebird, earliest, sweetest child of May.

Canst thou draw out the Leviathan with a hook? or his tongue with a cord which thou lettest down? Canst thou put a hook into his nose? or bore his jaw through with a thorn? Job xli. 1, 2. There is no animal known with which the description of the Leviathan so well agrees as the crocodile, though some have applied it to the whale or to the hippopotamus. The former is now, however, generally considered as the creature which is here described. It is too well known for details to be necessary respecting its form and habits. Its daring impetuosity, its 78 sharp, strong and massy teeth, its scaly coat, which will resist a musket ball its sparkling eyes; its steaming breath, like streams of fire and smoke, the violent agitation of the water wherever it dives, and the foaming surface made by its rapid swimming; all combine to make it a most dreadful animal, and exactly correspond with the description here given.

Oct. 12, O. S., or 23, N. S. 1492 Christopher Columbus, a native of Genoa, having overcome great difficulties in procuring a fleet, and sailed from Spain on Friday, the 3rd of August preceding, under the patronage of King Ferdinand and his Queen Isabella, on the above ever-memorable day, discovered America, the largest and now most important of the four grand divisions of the earth. Thus in the space of little more than three hundred years from its first discovery, has so great a part of this vast continent been changed from an entire savage and howling wilderness, to its present civilized, enlightened, refined and populous state. The honor of giving his name to the country belonged to Columbus, but he was robbed of it by one Americus, who afterwards visited, and wrote so flattering a description of it, that the whole continent was called after him.

8, 1814.—Hartford Convention recommended by the Legislature of Massachusetts, in compliance with the wishes of Gov. Strong.

1st 1775.—Falmouth, now Portland, Me., burnt by the British.

Trees, in purple vesture clad,
Meet the vision all around;
And the forest is as sad
As the hoarse wind's grating sound.

Farmers' Calendar.—The farmer exults in recounting the worthies of all ages, who, superior to vulgar prejudice, have accounted it their honor, and their happiness to be enrolled among the cultivators of the soil. By such he finds his art to have been honored from the dark times of fable and mythology, to the present moment of meridian light.

The season approaches for long evenings, and the girls begin to think of quilting frolics and sweethearts. To be sure there is no hurt in this if you only practice temperance. How is the barn and woodhouse?

*See! the desolating frost withers every tender flower;
Nature mourns her beauty lost, short-lived beauty of an hour.*

November is associated with gloom, inasmuch as its days and nights are, for the most part, sullen and sad. But the transition to this gloom is slow and gradual. The mornings are cold and foggy, but a fine open day often follows. The country has now exchanged its refreshing varieties of green, for hues of saffron, crimson, russet and dark brown.

The dying year! the dying year!
The heaven is clear and mild;
And withering all the fields appear,
Where once the verdure smiled.

The summer ends its short career—
The zephyr breathes farewell;
And now upon the closing year
The yellow glories dwell.

The radiant clouds float slow above
The lake's transparent breast;
In splendid foliage all the grove
Is fancifully dressed.

On many a tree the autumn throws
Its brilliant robes of red,
As sickness lights the cheeks of those
It hastens to the dead.

The time is flattering and bright,
But tells of death like this;
And they that see its gathering light,
Their lingering hopes dismiss.

Oh! thus serene and free from fear,
May be our last repose;
Thus like the Sabbath of the year,
Our latest evening close.

The Harvest is past, the Summer is ended.—Jer. viii. 20. Travelling in the country we may now observe the meads to have lost that profusion of fragrant odors which once perfumed the air—to be disrobed of that rich variety of curious dyes which surpassed even Solomon in all his glory. Not a single flower appears to gladden the sight, to bespangle the ground, or enamel the barren landscape. The clouds that so lately distilled in dews of honey, or poured themselves forth in showers of fatness, now combine in torrents to overflow the lifeless earth, to bury or sweep away all the faint footsteps of former beauty. The hills, that were crowned with corn, the vallies that laughed and sung under loads of golden grain; in a word, the whole face of nature, that so lately rejoiced for the abundance of her plenty, is become bare, naked, and disconsolate.

Nov. 4, 1825.—Completion of the Grand Erie Canal, celebrated with great splendor at the city of New York, on the arrival of a packet boat from Buffalo, which entered the Canal from Lake Erie nine days before. An aquatic procession, consisting of 22 steamboats, besides numerous other vessels, attended the canal boat to Sandy Hook, where was performed the ceremony of uniting the waters, by pouring that of Lake Erie into the Atlantic. This stupendous and magnificent work, the longest canal in the world, if we except the Imperial canal of China, was completed at an expense of $9,000,000: it opens a navigation from Lake Erie to the Hudson river at Albany, 362 miles: it is the property of the State of New York.

9, 1813.—Talladega Battle; Gen. Jackson defeats the Creek Indians with great slaughter.

7, 1811.—Tippecanoe Battle; Gen. Harrison signal-ly defeats the British and Indians.

Songs of gratitude should rise
From the hearts of all below,
To the Ruler of the skies,
From whom all our blessings flow.

Farmers' Calendar.—Agriculture is an employment instituted by God himself, and by him peculiarly owned and blest. It is that on which everything else depends. True, it is laborious: but then the labor brings health, and health is the foundation of enjoyment and happiness. The condition of the farmer is the condition of independence. His little domain is his own, his comforts are his own, and he is not at the mercy of public whim and caprice.

Finish thrashing your grain lest the rats and mice destroy it.

*As we close this fleeting year, we may with it pass away,
Or if we should linger here, long we know we cannot stay.*

This is "Dark December," winter has now completely arrived, and the weather is cold and gloomy. Instead of radiant skies, verdant groves, and variegated meadows we have now only a frowning atmosphere, dreary wastes and leafless trees. Vegetation is dead, the feathered songsters banished, and nature in ruin lies.

Now winter comes in stern attire,

Arrayed in robes that few admire;

Her girdle ice, her covering snow,

Her breath the coldest winds that blow.

Thou desolate and dying year!
Emblem of transitory man,
Whose wearisome and wild career
Like thine, is bounded to a span;

It seems but as a little day
Since nature smiled upon thy birth,
And Spring came forth in fair array,
To dance upon the joyous earth.

Sad alteration—now how lone—
How verdureless is nature's breast,
Where Ruin makes his empire known,
In Autumn's yellow vestiture dress:

The sprightly bird whose carol sweet
Broke on the breath of early day—
The summer flowers she loved to greet—
The bird, the flowers, oh, where are they?

Time! Time! In thy triumphal sight,
How all life's phantoms fleet away—
The smile of hope—and young delight—
Fame's meteor beam—and Fancy's ray;

They fade—and on thy heaving tide—
Rolling its stormy waves afar,
Are borne the wrecks of human pride—
The broken wrecks of fortune's war.

The voice said, cry. And he said, what shall I cry? All flesh is grass, and the goodliness thereof is as the flower of the field: The grass withereth, the flower fadeth: surely the people is grass.—Isa xl 6, 7. And must we undergo so grievous an alteration? We, whose sprightly blood circulates in briskest tides? We, who are the favorites of time, on whom youth, and strength, and health shed their richest influence? We, who are so apt to look upon ourselves as exempt from cares, or pains, or troubles; and privileged to drink in the sweets of life without restraint, without alloy? Must we forget the sunshine of our enjoyments for anything resembling this melancholy gloom? Must the sparkling eye set in haggard dimness? the lovely features and glowing cheeks be obscured by pale deformity? Must soft and gay desires be banished from our breasts, or mirth or jollity from our conversation? Must the vigor of our age depart so quickly, and the blissful minutes of the prime of our years vanish like a dream? Even so! our days are swifter than a weaver's shuttle, and are spent without hope. Our strength is cut off, and we fly away.

Dec. 25, in the year of the world 4004, 1844 years ago, in the reign of Augustus Caesar, there was a universal peace among all nations of the earth. The glorious epoch arrived! The promise of God, and the prophecies of his prophets, concerning the Messiah, were accomplished. The glory of the Lord shone round about! The star appeared in the east! The angelic hosts proclaimed in accents of praise, "Glory to God in the highest—on earth peace—good will to men. Behold, I bring you glad tidings of great joy, which shall be to all people: for unto you is born this day, in the city of DAVID, a SAVIOUR, who is CHRIST, the LORD!" In Bethlehem of Judea, the wise men, directed by the star, witnessed and published this glorious event.

As we close this fleeting year,
Should we not review the past?
Long we cannot tarry here;
This, perhaps, may be our last.

Farmers' Calendar.—To conclude, from all my observations of mankind and of society, I do not think, that in any pursuit whatever, a young man has a greater chance for a happy life, than in that of the husbandman.
Neglect not the education of your children. Live in peace with your neighbor. Farewell!

Chronology.

JAN. 21, 1793. Louis XVI. King of France, beheaded. He was a mild, benevolent, virtuous and amiable man; and the friend and patron of the U. States, in their struggle for independence. He was much attached to religion, and anxious to make his subjects happy; but by them he was treated in the vilest manner, called a tyrant and traitor, and finally condemned and executed by a perjured tribunal.

FEB. 17, 1815. Peace with Great Britain ratified by Congress. During a war of near three years, the brilliant achievements of our infant navy were witnessed with wonder by the neighboring nations. The haughty pride of England was humbled, and she learnt that the U. States were a nation with which, with all her gigantic power, she could not contend without destruction to herself.

MARCH 22, 1765. The famous Stamp-Act passed the British Parliament. The day on which it came in force in America, in many towns, was ushered in by a funeral tolling of bells. In Boston, a coffin, inscribed with the word "LIBERTY," was carried to the grave, and minute guns were fired, and the bells were tolled during the movement of the procession. At the burying ground, an Eulogy on departed LIBERTY was pronounced. Expressions of wounded and indignant feeling occurred in all parts of the country.

APRIL 2, 1738, O. S. Settlement of New Haven by the English began; and soon after that of the adjoining towns, which together went by the name of the COLONY OF NEW HAVEN. Among the founders of this colony was Mr. John Davenport, a celebrated minister of London. The unmolested enjoyment of civil and religious liberty, was the object of their emigration, as it was of most of the emigrants to this country. Having purchased the land of Monaugin, sachem of the country, whom they paid to his full satisfaction; on the 7th they kept their first Sabbath in this place, under a large oak tree, where Mr. Davenport preached to them.

MAY 13, O. S. 1607. First permanent settlement in the United States, made at Jamestown, Va., by a colony of about one hundred persons from England. In less than two years they were joined by above four hundred more, but the colony did not prosper; the Indians were hostile, and in 1609, a dreadful famine and sickness ensued. In six months, the settlers were reduced from five hundred persons to sixty. To such extremities were they driven that they devoured the skins of the horses, the bodies of the Indians whom they killed in battle, and at last those of their own companions, who had sunk under accumulated miseries. These tremendous sufferings were recollected long afterwards with horror, and the period was remembered and distinguished by the name of the "STARVING TIME."

JUNE 17, 1775. Bunker-Hill Battle. The awful sublimity and horrors of this scene were vastly increased by the conflagration of Charlestown, effected during the heat of the battle, by the orders of General Gage. By this wanton act of barbarity, nearly 3000 people were at once deprived of their habitations, and private property to the amount of nearly $1,000,000 was destroyed. Wanton, however, as was the burning of this village, it wonderfully enhanced the dreadful magnificence of the day. To the din of arms, the volleys of the musketry, and the thunder of the cannon; to the shouts of the fighting, and the groans of the dying; to the dark and awful atmosphere of smoke, enveloping the whole peninsula, and illumined in every quarter, by the streams of fire from the various instruments of death, the crash of falling timbers, and the roar of the flames of the general conflagration of nearly 1000 wooden buildings, added a gloomy and amazing grandeur. In the midst of this waving lake of flame, the lofty steeple of the spacious and elegant Congregational Church, converted into a blazing pyramid, towered and trembled over the vast pyre, and finished the scene of desolation.

JULY 25, 1814. Desperate engagement at Bridgewater, Upper Canada, commonly called the "BATTLE OF NIAGARA." This bloody action was fought near the great cat-act, whose tremendous roar was drowned by the thunder of artillery and the din of arms, but was distinctly heard during the pauses of the fight. Against a superior force did the Americans contend, with various success, from six o'clock in the evening till midnight; when both parties, fatigued and satiated with slaughter, retired, leaving nearly 500 men dead on the field: the U. States had near 200 killed, and about 600 wounded. The British had about 300 killed, and 800 wounded. The scene of this sanguinary conflict was about half a mile west of the Niagara cataract: the thunder of the cannon, the roaring of the falls, the incessant discharge of the musketry: the groans of the wounded and dying, during the six hours in which the party were engaged in close combat, heightened by the circumstance of its being night, afforded such a scene as is rarely to be met with in the history of human slaughter. The evening was calm, and the moon shone with lustre, except when enveloped in clouds of smoke from the firing of the contending armies. About 9000 men were engaged in the battle.

FRIDAY, AUG. 3, O. S. 1492. Columbus embarked on his first voyage, in which he discovered America. The superstitious notion that FRIDAY is an unlucky day to engage in any new undertaking, or to commence a voyage, did not, it seems, exist in the time of Columbus; otherwise he would not have fixed on this unlucky day to set sail on so important a voyage. When and whence did this superstitious notion originate? Why do men continue to entertain it, in an age which boasts a freedom from the shackles of superstition? Is it not time that it was banished? The success of Columbus in discovering a new world, during a voyage commenced on Friday, proves, if any thing, that this is the most lucky day in the seven, for going to sea. If so, why would it not be well to substitute it in the room of the Sabbath, which is now too commonly fixed on for that purpose.

SEP. 14, 1812. Moscow burnt. Here was exhibited a scene which passes all description. Was the night scene in the battle of Aboukir terrible? Was the blaze of Copenhagen and Trafalgar terrible? They were but the tapers of the evening to the blaze and conflagration of Moscow; A city ten miles in extent, 30 or 40 miles in circuit, all consuming with one general conflagration, can neither be conceived of or described. The awful sublimity of the scene was best expressed by the Emperor Napoleon, "An ocean of flame!" but the wealth, splendor, and magnificence of Moscow, were soon smoking in ruins.

OCT. 1, 1807. First successful application of steam to the purpose of navigation, in the United States, in a voyage from New York to Albany, by the steamboat Clermont. The boat, on her passage, excited the terror and astonishment of the inhabitants along the shores of the Hudson, many of whom had never heard of an engine, much less of a steamboat. She was described by some, who had an indistinct view of her in the night, as "a hideous monster, hissing horribly, and belching flames and smoke: marching rapidly through the waters against wind and tide, and lighting his path by the fire which he vomited.

Nov. 30, 1811. A volcano burst out from an unfathomable depth of the ocean, near the island of St. Michael, one of the Azores. It burned with great violence for several months, and formed an island of considerable height, more than a mile in circumference. This island which was named Sabrina, has since disappeared. St. Helena is supposed to have been thrown up by a volcano, from the depths of the sea, not more than two centuries ago. Other islands of volcanic origin exist in the Archipelago, and in the Pacific Ocean near the western coast of North America, as well as in several other places.

Dec. 31, 1555. Burnt at the stake, in London, by order of Queen Mary, John Bradford, an eminent dissenting preacher, and principal instrument of the reformation in the church. He endured the flame as a fresh gale of wind in a hot summer's day, and exclaimed in the fire, "Straight is the way, and narrow is the gate, that leadeth to salvation, and few there be that find it.

Miscellany.

A wag stepped into a cellar in South Market street, Albany, and inquired the price of oranges. "One cent a piece, wholesale, and three pence retail." "Then, if you please, (at the same time throwing a penny upon the counter,) I'll take that fine plump fellow at wholesale."

Epigram on a large, fleshy person.

All flesh is grass, thus doth the scriptures say ;
All grass, when cut and dried, is turn'd to hay !
Then lo ! to thee, when Death his scythe shall take ;
Oh ! Conscience ! what a hay-stack thou wilt make !

A good one.—A gentleman in his eagerness at table to answer a call for some apple pie, owing to the knife sliding on the bottom of the plate, found his knuckles buried in the crust, when a wag, who was seated just opposite to him, very gravely observed, whilst he held his plate, "Sir, may I trouble you for a bit, whilst your hand's n ?"

Very natural.—Married at Hobartville, Me., by the Rev. Thomas Thaw, Mr. Edward Spring to Miss Margaret Winter. A thaw, we find, generally turns Winter into Spring.

Pretty good.—"What dat you pick up dere. Sambo?" "Dollar, Pompey." "Well, just lef 'em down again. I only put 'em dere to try you."

An avaricious, hypochondriacal gentleman fancied himself to be very much out of health ; but being too penurious to pay a doctor's fee, though he would steal an opinion concerning his case. Accordingly, one day being in familiar conversation with one of the faculty, he asked him what he should take for such a complaint. "I will tell you," said the doctor, "you should take advice."

Ways and Means.—Two Irishmen who were travelling together, got out of money, and being in want of a drink of whiskey, devised the following ways and means; Patrick catching a frog out of the brook, went forward, and the first tavern he came to, asked the landlord what creature that was. "It is a frog," replied the landlord. "No, sir," said Pat, "it is a mouse." "It is a frog," rejoined the landlord. "It is a mouse," said Pat, "and I will leave it to the first traveller that comes along, for a pint of whiskey." "Agreed," said the landlord. Murphy soon arrived, and to him was the appeal made. After much examination and deliberation, it was decided to be a mouse ; and the landlord in spite of the evidence of his senses, paid the bet.

Angler.—A stick and a string, with a worm at one end, and a fool at the other.—Dean Swift.

Pickling old Pork!—Married at Liberty Town, Ill., Sewall N. Pickle, Esq., aged 23, to Miss Clara Maria Pork, aged 62!

A Yankee.—Tell about drummin—now d'ye ever hear Ben Biglick's drum?—he was a cooler, I tell ye, for the raal sentimental stuff, drummin round a corner, and sich like—he'd drum the shirt tail off of any thing ever I heard.

Tit for Tat.—A fellow who was sparring with an open hand, without muffers, struck his opponent a savage blow in the face, which brought the blood from his nose ; and perceiving his antagonist was about to retaliate in the same unceremonious style, he exclaimed, "What, can't you bear a thump?" "Yes," replied the other, "I'll let you see that I can not only bear a thump, but thump a bear!" and turning to in earnest, he gave the ruffian a hearty mauling.

Wit on a death bed.—Swift's Stella, in her last illness, being visited by her physician, he said, "Madam, I hope we shall soon get you up the hill again." "Ah!" said she, "I am afraid before I get to the top of the hill I shall be out of breath."

A worthless Gift.—Voltaire tells of a beggar asking alms in the suburbs of Madrid, when a passer-by said to him, "Are you not ashamed to follow that infamous employment, as you are able to work?" To which the beggar smartly replied, "Sir, I ask your charity—not your advice."

Happiness ever flies away fastest when most eagerly pursued; and no galley slaves labor harder than those who devote their lives to the pursuit of pleasure.

Two things are difficult for man to do ;
'Tis to be selfish and be honest too.

Bait.—One animal impaled upon a hook, in order to torture a second, for the amusement of a third.

Thou speakest ill of me,
And I speak well of thee ;
Luckless art thou—luckless am I,
For every body knows—both lie.

A gentleman in the country lately addressed a passionate billet doux to a lady in the same town, adding this curious postscript—"Please to send a speedy answer, as I have somebody else in my eye."

"What do you ask for your beef?" said a man to a butcher the other day, "Six cents a pound," was the reply. "Six cents! no, not I, faith," said the man, "I had rather go home and dive into my pork barrel." "And break your skull against the bottom," said the butcher.

The rolling planets and the glorious sun,
Still keep that order which they first begun;
But wretched man alone has gone astray,
Swerved from his God, and walks another way.

If you invite one to your house, show him a friendly behaviour and an open countenance; it is a flagrant sin against the laws of hospitality, to open your door and shut your benignity.

Eternal Maker! hail! hail power divine!
The Heaven and Earth, the day and night are thine;
Matter and form to Thee their being owe,
From Thee, their great original, they flow.

To spin with art, in ancient times, has been
Tho't not beneath the noble dame or Queen:
From that employ, our maidens had the name
Of Spinsters, which they now disclaim;
But since to Cards each female turns her mind,
And to that dear delight is so inclined,
Change the soft name of Spinster to a harder,
And let each damsel now, be called a Carder.

HUMAN LIFE.

Ah, what is life! a dream within a dream!
A pilgrimage from peril rarely free!
A bark that sails upon a changing sea,
Now sunshine and now storm; a mountain stream,
Heard, but scarce seen, ere to the dark deep gone;
A wild star, blazing with unsteady beam,
Yet for a season fair to look upon,
Like as an infant on Affection's knee.
A youth now full of hope and transient glee;
In manhood's peerless noon now bright, anon
A time-worn ruin, silvered o'er with years.
Life is a race where slippery steps arise,
Where discontent and sorrow are the prize,
And when the goal is won, the grave appears.

A Connecticut editor threatens a contemporary, that if he continues to repeat his "insulting interrogatories," he may think it best to "procure a good cowhide and proceed to settle the following question experimentally :—namely, which is the most durable, COWHIDE or CALF SKIN!"

"Dick," said a master to a servant, "have you fed the pigs?" "Yes, massa, me fed um." "Did you count them, Dick?" "Yes, me count um all but one." "All but one?" "Yes, massa, all but one—dare be one little speckled pig, he frisk about so much me couldn't count him."

What land is that so nicely bound
By Massachusetts and the Sound,
Rhode Island and New York, around;
Where Yankees thick as hops are found,
And hasty puddings do abound?

What land is that, where George the King,
Did o'er the sea his fetters fling,
And think to link us in their ring,
Which gave the cry, "there's no such thing,"
Whose sons did Yankee Doodle sing?

What land is that where folks are said
To be so scrupulously bred,
To be so steadily habited;
Where hearty girls and boys are fed
With pumpkin pies and gingerbread?

What land is that where old Time walks
In steady pace, o'er maple blocks;
Forsakes his glass for wooden clocks;
Where heads too high will meet with knocks,
And land were more, if fewer rocks?

What land is that where onions grow,
And maidens' necks are white as snow,
And cheeks like roses, red you know;
Where Johnny cakes are baked of dough,
That land where milk and honey flow?

What land is that whence pedlers come,
A thousand miles and more from home,
With tin, with bass-wood trenchers; some
With patent nutmegs, and new rum,
To gather up the coppers? hum!

What land is that where I can trace
My nineteenth cousin by his face;
Where once I fished for little dace,
And never learned the deuce from ace,
Where grandmamma this night says grace?

What land is that where parsons live,
Where men hear gospel and believe;
Where humble sinners seek reprieve;
Where women stay at home and weave,
Nor gad without their husbands' leave?

What land is that, when we behold,
And all its history unfold,
And all about the land is told,
We like most things, but some we scold?
Ah! gentle reader, that is old

CONNECTICUT.

An English gentleman was complaining bitterly once to an itinerant fisherman who occasionally supplied him with fish, that a lobster which he had purchased of him the day before, was not "quite fresh." "Vell, mister," cried the fisherman, "and whose fault's that, I wonders? I've cried him by your house every day for a fortnight; you might have bought him before if you're so wery petickler."

BOSTON ALMANAC FOR

1844,

PUBLISHED BY THOMAS GROOM & CO.

STATIONERS' HALL,

NO, 82 STATE STREET, BOSTON.

This beautiful and highly valuable little Annual will be brought out in an improved style and manner for 1844. It will contain a correct Directory of all Business men and Firms in the city of Boston, with the streets and numbers at which they may be found. Besides this very useful department, it will contain very full and complete Calender pages, each one accompanied with a blank page on the opposite leaf, with as many lines ruled upon it as there are days in the month. These are for Memoranda pages, and are found very convenient, either for keeping accounts or for other purposes. At the foot of each calendar page there is a table showing the temperature, winds, weather, &c. for every day in the preceding year. Another feature in this Almanac, making it peculiarly different from all others, is a Chronology of events, local and general. These serve a double purpose; as matter of history, they are useful, and as a warning to the present generation they are highly important, shewing and reminding the reader of the quicksands and rocks upon which many of those who have gone before us have been wrecked. Many a man as well as youth, might by consulting these memoranda, avoid some similar catastrophe as that of which he reads. Take the Almanac as a whole, a more useful book of its size cannot be found. A cheaper one certainly was never published; being only 25 cents for a bound pocket volume in fine print, and containing 120 pages. It has received the most unqualified approbation of the American Newspaper Press. And no book has so universally received the sanction of all classes.

Just Published and for Sale by

THOMAS GROOM & CO. NO. 82 STATE STREET,

TALE OF THE SEA,

This is a very neat volume of 432 pages, illustrated with many fine and spirited wood Engravings. These Tales originally appeared in the Boston Evening Mercantile Journal, the Editor of which remodelled and revised them for their appearance in the present volume. The sketches are truly graphic, and replete with interesting incident. Being of a moral tone, they are designed not only to make the reader wiser, but better. The author of them being for many years engaged in the arduous and perilous duties incident to a sea-faring life, may well be supposed to have drawn these sketches with a master hand. They have received the highest encomiums from the editorial fraternity. Being got up in beautiful style, it presents a very attractive volume; and so much are they esteemed by the reading community, that two or three editions have already been sold.
